THE BREMBANA NEWS ADVERTISER

October 10, 1958 Vol. 3. No. 41. A. Playford, Editor. Drayton Valley, Alberta.

FRACTIONATING PLANT OPERATES

The huge fractionating plant on the east side of the river, near Buck Creek, which has been under construction for the past year was completed recently, and with most of the machinery and refining and fractionating units already installed, got into production during the past week.

Processing from all the liquids coming into the plant from the eight stations throughout the field began and the sale of the products is underway.

For the present time the liquids are being transported to the loading station in Breton by tank truck; they will soon be taken to the loading station by pipeline.

In the past week Mr. Bass, president of Bass and Son Company, who are the parent company under which Goliad Ltd. and Goliad Oil and Gas operate, accompanied by Mr. Wells, chairman of the Board, were at the plant site on a tour of inspection. Main office for Goliad Ltd. and Goliad Oil and Gas is in Calgary, and most of the directors of the two companies are Canadian.

With the plant getting into production to produce propane, methane, ethane, butane and iso-butane there should be no shortage of propane in this area again, as the plant can adequately take care of all the needs along those lines now.

The plant will also produce a 12 lb. vapor-pressure natural gasoline. The company is all set to deliver the rest of the natural gas to Northwestern Utilities Company as soon as they are ready to be-voir field. As soon as gas distribution to Northwestern Utilities starts the gas flares now lighting the night skies will cease except for an occasional outlying battery, before lines are laid to it to conserve the gas and conduct it to the fractionating plant.

In the process of conserving the natural gas from this field between 2 and 3 hundred miles of pipeline, ranging in size from 3" to 16" has been installed, with both the Brembana and the Saskatchewan Rivers crossed twice with submarine crossings. Over twenty millions of dollars has been spent in the process.

Poole-Fritchard built the fractionating plant; Brown and Root built the other plants throughout the field and Goliad Construction had the main contract for the huge pipeline gathering system which was sub-let out to other companies, most of whom have local offices. All the phases of the huge project were originally scheduled to be completed in about a year, and the production schedule, aided by a summer of unusually good weather, was right on time. The Alberta Gas and Oil Conservation Board had originally set a dead-line on the cessation of the flaring of gas in this field for November 1st, of this year. Apparently that schedule will be maintained, as the project is now well in hand and almost completed.

The some twenty millions of dollars expended to put the gas gathering into operation by the various oil companies operating in this field who are a company to the gas-gathering agreement is but a part of the tremendous investment of over 700 millions of dollars which has actually been expended in this field or which is proposed for the immediate future.

This huge sum is almost a quarter of a billion more money than has been spent on the St. Lawrence Seaway, which has seen the sum of between 450 and 500 millions of dollars spent on that national project; in this field, however, private capital entirely has invested the close-to-three quarter billion dollars to put the field into productivity.

After the construction phase of the gas gathering project is over there will be about fifty permanent employees here to operate the eight plants throughout the field and the main fractionating plant.

ROAD BUILT TO BRAZEAU RIVER. A road to give winter access to the area where Calgary Power are conducting surveys along the Brazeau River to determine the feasibility of putting a dam, or series of dams on the river, is being put in by Curtis Harris of Lodgepole.

The road takes off from the Forestry Road, west of Brazeau tower and runs south and west to the Brazeau.

KEN MASON'S COLUMN:

The Alberta government has opened a new offensive in the drum-out battle against high freight rates.

Premier Manning has written directly to the Prime Minister J. Diefenbaker, suggesting a federal operating subsidy as an alternative to rate increase being sought by Canada's two major railways. He bases the suggestion on this argument:

The full impact of the increases -- which could be as high as 33 per cent -- would be felt by some 40 per cent of the nation's shippers in the already hard-hit prairie provinces and the Maritimes.

If the railways are important to the country's economy, he argues, why not make all the people of Canada pay some of the cost of keeping them operating? A federal subsidy would spread the burden evenly, he says.

The letter says it is time for a "thorough re-appraisal of the entire freight rate situation..." To grant the increases, it says, would be "so manifestly unfair as to be indefensible."

The premier gives a striking example of how the existing rate structure works a hardship on prairie shippers. Iron and steel articles shipped from Toronto to Vancouver go at a rate of $1.29 per 100 pounds. The same items shipped to Alberta points cost $2.82 per 100 pounds, even though the haul is some 800 miles shorter.

The rate to Vancouver is lower because it comes under the agreed charge setup -- a competitive rate set by contract between the railways and the shipper. The railway gets all the shipper's business, and in return the shipper gets a lower rate.

Any increase authorised by the federal transport board would not boost the agreed charges, which are in effect on some 450 commodities. They would all be added to the already-high rates in the Prairies and the Maritimes.

Premier Manning says he wrote directly to the Prime Minister because experience has shown no help can be expected from the transport commissioners. Meanwhile, the railways say if they don't get more revenue they'll be unable to meet employees' wage demands, and there may be a crippling, nationwide strike.

ATOMS FOR OIL -- As predicted here some weeks ago, new attention is being focused on northern Alberta's fabulous Athabasca Oil Sands. Word comes from Ottawa that the federal mines department is interested in a proposal to use atomic explosions to free the oil from the sand.

Here's how the process is supposed to work: The terrific heat (cont'd next column)

from an underground nuclear blast would melt the sand and leave a reservoir of oil which could be pumped from the surface.

Richfield Oil Corporation, a big U.S. concern with Canadian headquarters in Calgary, is promoting the plan. It proposes to get the necessary nuclear device through the U. S. government. One hurdle to be cleared is permission from the Alberta oil and gas conservation board, but there is little doubt this will be granted.

Increased interest in oil sands experiments is due partly to a change in oil sands leasing regulations passed by the government in 1955. Prior to that, any company that wanted to hold acreage had to start building a plant within a year. Now, a company with land in the sands can take its time and experiment until the government decides it is time for action.

A number of other big companies are testing processes. Royalite Oil Co. and Cities Service Petroleum Corporation are working on a process to extract oil from surface deposits. Details are secret. Some major companies are interested in a process, developed in Edmonton, which uses ultrasonic sound waves to wrench the oil from the sand.

The estimated 300 barrels in the sands aren't needed to meet world supplies at present, but some day they will be and the first company to find an economical extraction process will gain an important advantage over competitors.

Back In 1954 when the provincial public works department decided to do its own architectural work, the province's private architects raised a storm of protest.

Last week, they decided the government was adding insult to injury in its contest to choose a design for 50 old folks' homes to be built throughout the province. The contest is open to anyone who can draw a straight line. The Alberta Association of architects warned its members that to enter the $10,000 contest would be regarded as unprofessional conduct. Premier Manning's reaction: "regrettable"

INJURED IN ACCIDENT.

Keith Peterson, local manager for Perforating Guns of Canada, was seriously injured while driving on #16 Highway about two miles from Stony Plain on Wednesday, October 8th. Apparently the accident resulted from a combination of the intensely high wind that was blowing that day and the icy road. Mr. Peterson's car slid on the city road and the high wind took it into the path of another vehicle. He was driving alone at the time of the accident. Mr. Peterson was taken to Royal Alexandra Hospital, suffering from two broken ribs and a misplaced disk in his back. It is expected that he will be hospitalized for several weeks and when he gets out of the hospital will be laid up for quite a while.

Frank Brown, District Manager for Regina for Perforating Guns has come to the Drayton Valley office to take the place of Mr. Peterson till he can return to work.

For the evening program Curt Clauson gave a very enjoyable talk on Fire Prevention.

One new teacher was introduced, a very good turnout of teachers was reported, and the question was raised if there was not something amiss when about 60% of the teachers were present, but only about 5% of the parents.

Next meeting will be Monday evening, October 27, at the School.

OUR FREE AGENCY

Philosophically men have analyzed, argued and at times disputed man's freedom of actions. If even one man had complete freedom all others would be deprived of it, for it is impossible to predict when absolute freedom would interfere with others' wishes and desires.

Our freedom does have its limitations based on the nature of the universe, environment, ignorance (which should be replaced by knowledge) and the association of other men. He can however choose among available alternatives. God holds man responsible for his actions, his choices pointing out the blessings received by those who choose good and punishments by those who do evil.

Knowing the truth and having the free agency to choose to live according to natural and divine law or to refuse to live according to them, we are indeed, masters of our fate.

Free Agency is feelingly portrayed in Wm. C. Gregg's poem:

"Now this, that every soul is free,
To choose his life and what he'll be;
For this eternal truth is given,
That God will force no man to heaven.
He'll call, persuade, direct aright,
And bless with wisdom, love, and light;
In nameless ways be good and kind,
But never force the human mind."

LOCAL GIRL VISITS RUSSIA --- In a letter to her parents and brother, Audrey Deby wrote of her trip to Russia of many miles ago. Andrew has been abroad for a little over two years this trip. She had previously been in Europe and had come home for about a year and then left again in the fall of 1956. Following is a part of the letter.....

"For the past six days I've been in the U.S.S.R. Please forgive me for not telling you where I was going but I just didn't want you to worry and I felt that you might. We're back on the ship now safe and sound and will be in Helsinki at 3 o'clock."

Russia was truly an experience. I tried hard to make good observations so I can tell you a bit when I get to Drayton Valley. We went in a group of thirty (Solitary travellers aren't allowed) and spent three days in each of Leningrad and Moscow. All agreed that I was the most fortunate member of the party because I made a Russian friend who asked me to his home and took me to the school where he teaches. The students all spoke English and swapped me the minute I sat down. They had millions of questions (cont'd next to ask. I visited the beggars, was presented with a bouquet by the smallest child and he said in good English "Please give our love to the Canadian children". I nearly cried- he was the sweetest child.

Everyone was extremely kind and friendly, we weren't allowed to queue for anything but went straight in. In Moscow we were to the Kremlin, the tombs, the University (anonymous, modern and free) the Stadium, the Agricultural exhibition and the State Department Store GUM (pronounced Goom).

We were allowed to wander anywhere we wished, take photographs of anything and talk to anyone as well as asking any questions we wanted to. Many Russians (young people mostly) speak English, French or German. They were utterly charming and so patient with our eternal questions.

There are no beggars in Russia and they accept nothing for free. When we saw children in the streets we gave them souvenirs of foreign coins, ball-point pens, cigarettes or match boxes and even pictures of ourselves. In exchange they always insisted on giving us a little soviet badge, a sweet, a miniature lock & key, etc. Many times they gave us small gifts and asked nothing in return.

Everyone spoke continually of peace even when that was the only English word they knew.

There's no more time if I'm to mail this. I can only say how glad I am to have made this trip and I feel much happier about the possibilities of our living in harmony in the world."

RADIO INSPECTORS VISIT DRAYTON VALLEY.

Radio Inspectors of the Department of Transport were recently in this area investigating sources of radio interference, that is, electrical interference to the reception of radio and television. Radio interference may originate from a number of electrical systems and apparatus, and some of the most common sources so far as the average household is concerned are fluorescent lamps, warming pads, old lightbulbs, vacuum cleaners and other household appliances.

Interference to normal radio reception is not only a nuisance, it's also contrary to the law; however, much of it can be easily suppressed by radio servicemen or dealers.

Investigations into the sources of interference are carried out by the Department of Transport as a free service to broadcast listeners and television viewers. All complaints of interference in this area should be made to the Regional Superintendent, Radio Regulations, Department of Transport, Federal Building, Edmonton, Alberta.

EDMONTON LIGHT OPERA SOCIETY.
On November 5, 6, 7 and 8, the Edmonton Light Opera Society will put on a production in Jubilee Auditorium; name of the play will be "Damn Yankees".

In the play the Washington Senators is the team that is always at the bottom, and has trouble winning against the Yankees until the old devil takes a hand, puts a miraculous power on their pitcher and makes them a winning team.

A number of good popular songs are listed in the program, among them such favorites as "Whatever Lola Wants".

All the players are strictly on an amateur basis with the exception of one man who was imported for the leading role; the same one who had the lead in the Broadway production.

East fall when the Edmonton Light Opera Society put on the show, "Pajama Game" several from Drayton Valley went in to see the performances and enjoyed it.

Tickets cost $2.00 each for good central section seats. Gene Baley has tickets, or can obtain them quickly, if anyone from this area wishes to see the play. Gene's phone number is 331.

INQUEST CONDUCTED IN RATALITY.

On October 8 an inquest into the death of James William Miller, of Buck Lake was conducted in Gardium Theatre, with Coroner Dr. Brooks conducting the inquest.

The Inquest Jury consisted of S.J. Lunan, foreman, Leonard Bannard, John Kenny, James Cumia, Don McKenzie and Curt Clauson.

The finding of the jury was as follows: "We find that James William Miller came to his death approximately at 7 p.m. September 26, approximately 5 miles north of Buck Creek.

Death was caused by injuries received as in result of the impact of a collision between a truck driven by James W. Miller and the truck operated for Western Rigging Company and driven by R.G. Schurman.

We feel this accident occurred due to the Miller unit being across the centre line of the road, and that R.G. Schurman and Western Rigging are in no way to blame for the death of James William Miller.

HOSPITAL GETS INTO FULL OPERATION.

Drayton Valley Municipal Hospital is getting into full swing and serving a great and growing need in the community.

In the two months it has been operating since it was opened at the end of the first week of August, there have been 220 admissions.

A sign of "things to come" has been (next column)

the large number of babies which have been born there, already.

So far, as of last week, there had been 31 babies born there, with four arriving within a 36 hour period, on one occasion.

While the hospital still does not have all its laboratory equipment on hand, more lab equipment is coming in all the time and it won't be long until the hospital will be fully equipped with the very latest in both x-ray and laboratory equipment.

Laboratory technician is Miss Joan Schuman, a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan. Miss Schuman is a Registered Technician.

A piece of very modern equipment which the hospital acquired recently is a mobile feeding unit called "Meals on Wheels". One side of the mobile unit is heated, for the hot meals, trays are on the other side of the unit. It has special compartments with faucets for milk and hot water. It is said to be the only one of its kind in Alberta. The mobile feeding unit is manufactured in Kansas City, Missouri.

UNIVERSITY STUDENT LOSES PAPERS.

Aldo Kastropil, a graduate of the University of Yugo-Slavia, which is now in Communist dominated territory, had the misfortune to lose his wallet containing his University diploma, high school diploma and other valuable papers in Drayton Valley recently. The wallet also contained the sum of $140, but Mr Kastropil does not mind the loss of the money so much as the university papers, since he cannot get any more as the Communist powers now controlling Yugo-Slavia would not re-issue any more papers for him of his university degree, as he escaped from the country some time ago, and came over to Canada. He has a degree in civil engineering but will need his papers to get a job here.

He is trying to earn enough money to bring his wife and little girl over from Yugo-Slavia, but so far has not been able to get a job without his documents.

Mr Kastropil is perfectly willing to let the money go as a reward to anyone who returns his important documents to him. They can be returned to him c/o Mr H.W. Pickup. They may be returned in a plain envelope.
